SUMMARY

A small arms range covering 65 acres is located in a clearing immediately south of the village of Kidoush (Figure 1). Included in the range area are two oval vehicle tracks, four moving target tracks, and a secured storage area enclosing four storage buildings (Figures 2 and 3).

The clearing in which the range is situated is visible on World War II photography. One oval track and some trails were discernible [ ]

[ ] The four storage buildings appeared [ ] The second oval track appeared [ ] There has been a steady increase in ground scars and track activity [ ]

The probable use of this range is to provide training in using small arms from stationary and moving platforms against stationary and moving targets.
